

NEWSPAPER CHAFF.

Uncle Joe Cannon, And he knows, I guess, Says that his country's A helix of success. You can't measure on Good old man and son. This country has been A big oyster for him.

—Houston Post.

It was out in Kansas City that a girl went into a bookstore and asked to see a copy of "The Pioneer." She looked at it a few minutes and handed it back to the clerk.

"Takin' what I want," she said. "I want a book on piano playing."

"Did you think the pioneer was such a book?" asked the proprietor.

"Why, yes," she replied. "Wouldn't you, from that name?" —Harris Horn.

Ned Wayburn, whose "Rain-dears" are making a hit in the Wistaria Grove, can appreciate a good thing, even when it's on him.

"I'd wired ahead for the lower berth and just got comfortably settled," said Mr. Wayburn, "when a fat man began puffing and blowing in his perspiration to the upper."

"Hard work for a man of my (ht)," he gasped.

"How much do you weigh, may I?"

"Three hundred and eighty pounds," said the fat man.

"Hold on. Take this one," I exclaimed.

"You see," explains Mr. Wayburn, "the ventilation is better in the upper berth—on occasions." —August Young's Magazine.

Prof. G. A. Hill of the National observatory was describing the duties of an astronomical corps during an eclipse, says the New York Tribune.

"The eclipse," he said, "may last only five minutes. Each man in the party has a certain line of work mapped out for him during these precious minutes. One man makes hurried pencil sketches, another man photographs, a third takes observations, while a fourth jots down his remarks."

"And so it goes. An astronomical corps during an eclipse is a very busy body. An interruption would be as unwelcome as—"

Prof. Hill smiled.

"An interruption would be as unwelcome to it as it once was to a young friend of mine in Elizabeth."

"My friend, according to the story, was calling on his sweetheart, who lived on Elizabeth's outskirts."

"As the young man was taking leave for the night his voice, as he stood on the piazza, rose passionately to the still air."

"Just one," he said. "Just one."

"Then the young girl's mother interrupted, calling from the bedroom window."

"Just 12. No it ain't quite that yet."

"It's close on to 12, so I think you'd better go in just the same."

German gentleman and his young Fritz were on an express train id for the seashore.

While Fritz was snoring his father, who occupied the window seat, snatched his cap and seemingly threw it out of the open window.

"Ah," the joking father said, "your cap is on the outside. Never mind, Fritz, it'll come on its inside again in a twinkling."

The father whistled and at the same moment, deftly placed the cap on his attentive son's head. Fritz was speechless. He pulled off his head-covering and gazed at it in wonder and at his father's face in deep admiration for several minutes.

As the train neared a bridge the little chap was inspired. Leaning far out of the open window he dropped the cap and turning to his dad confidently, said, "Watch, father." —Lippincott's.

A regulation of the public school administration of Baltimore requires that notice shall, from time to time, be given the parents of any pupil whose eyesight needs attention.

In one case the teacher of a primary school in the poorer quarter of the city, had written the father of one pupil this note:

"Dear Sir: It is my duty, under the regulations, to advise you that your son, Thomas Blank, shows unmistakable signs of astigmatism. The case should receive attention at once."

In reply the teacher received a note from the father, in these laconic terms:

"Dear Madam: Lick it out of him. Very truly, Charles Blank."

he head of a well-known theological seminary in the South is accused to test the ability and self-reliance of the students by sending them into the pulpit with a seal envelope in their hands containing the text of a sermon to be delivered on the spur of the moment.

On one such occasion the student, on opening his paper, read these instructions: "Apply the story of Zachariah to your own circumstances and your call to the ministry."

The student, clever enough, delivered himself of the following:

"Brethren, the subject on which I address you is a combination between Zachariah and myself, with reference to my qualifications for the pulpit. The first thing we read of Zachariah is that he was small of stature. I never felt so small as I do now. In the second place, we read that Zachariah was up a tree, which is very much my position at present. Thirdly, it is related that Zachariah made haste to come down again; and in this I glory and promptly follow his example." —Harper's Weekly.

William J. Carr of the state department had occasion to call at the house of a neighbor late at night. He rang the doorbell. After a long wait a head popped out of the second floor window.

"Who's there?" asked a voice. "Mr. Carr," was the reply. "Well," said the voice, as the window banged shut, "what do I care if you missed a car. Why don't you walk and not wake up people to tell them about it?" —Kansas City Star.

CASUAL PHILOSOPHY.

Female detectives should be good bookers.

Bargains, bargains, everywhere! When you haven't got a cent.

It's a wise traveling man who knows how and when to stop.

However, the short change man isn't necessarily short of change.

Only the honest grafter confines his operations to trees and shrubs.

A dinner that appeals to the eye doesn't always appeal to the stomach.

No married man would care to go fishing if his wife insisted on going along.

It sometimes happens that a shady character basks in the sunshine of popularity.

When a man gets a chance to dispose of his troubles he always leaps up the measure.

One kind of optimist is a self-satisfied bachelor who imagines he might be happy if married.

There are still a few old-fashioned married people in the world who really do not want a divorce.

Of course it's all right to be born a leader, but the man in the rear has a better opportunity to get away.

Few ideas of a mean man is one who will deliberately say things in his sleep for the purpose of keeping his tired wife awake.

If it cost more money not to smoke than to do it, it would be easier to swear off.

A girl seems to think it is a disgrace not to say she has killed three or four hundred men.

There is hardly anything so hard as making a woman believe you love her when she knows you really do.

No matter how thick they are, if you tell a woman her ankles twinkle she will never believe anything but she hears about you.

It's a mighty comfortable feeling to come home at 2 o'clock in the morning and know your wife is sound asleep away in the mountains.

If you don't take much to make a frog hopping man.

What happy lives farmers lead—in story books.

Hot weather is responsible for numerous shady transactions.

A dozen men may make a club but one woman can make a home.

Fully two-thirds of a college education is more ornamental than useful.

It's difficult for a man with a boat to get his wife to paddle his own canoe.

By praising men and flattering women one can acquire many fair-weather friends.

A man is foolish to borrow trouble when there are so many anxious to give it away.

It sometimes happens that the leader of an orchestra is afraid to go home to his wife and face the music.

Even an honest man allows his conscience to go into a trance long enough to enable him to get rid of a plugged nickel.

Everybody would want to tell the truth if it did the work better than a lie.

Faith in a thing is knowing you wouldn't have it if you tried to reason it out.

A girl is innocent when she isn't afraid to call what she walks with what they are.

One of the sardonic things of life is that when a man is lucky to die he isn't here to enjoy it.

When a woman has a good-looking husband it is a sign she is suspicious of the designs of most all her friends.

TO STOP LIQUOR TRAFFIC.

Action to Be Taken Against Dealers Shipping to Territory.

South McAlester, I. T., July 31.—Having triumphed completely over the local option liquor sellers, Assistant District Attorney Gresham will turn his attention to the shippers of contraband goods to the territory.

He has decided that every man who ships such goods into the territory is a violator of the law and may be tried for the offense.

Therefore the next federal grand jury will be asked to bring indictments against parties in Kansas City, St. Louis, Chicago and Dallas, and Judge Clayton will ask the governors of the respective states in which these cities are located for the surrender of the indicted parties. If extradition papers are granted the parties will be arrested and brought to this city for trial. In this matter it is the intention of the department of justice to go after the people who ship in the intoxicants under the guise of medicine.

Summer Diarrhoea in Children.

During the hot weather of the summer months the first unnatural looseness of a child's bowels should have immediate attention, so as to check the disease before it becomes serious.

All that is necessary is a few doses of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, followed by a dose of castor oil to cleanse the system.

Rev. M. O. Stockland, pastor of the First M. E. Church, Little Falls, Minn., writes: "We have used Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy for several years and find it a very valuable remedy, especially for summer disorders in children." G. B. Burhan Testifies After Four Years.

G. B. Burphans of Carlisle Center, N. Y., writes: "About four years ago I wrote you stating that I had been entirely cured of a severe kidney trouble by taking less than two bottles of Foley's Kidney Cure. It entirely stopped the brick dust sediment, and pain and symptoms of kidney disease disappeared. I am glad to say that I have never had a return of any of those symptoms during the four years that have elapsed and I am evidently cured to stay cured, and heartily recommend Foley's Kidney Cure to any one suffering from kidney or bladder trouble."
